

SUMMER TRAVEL IS BACK!

SUMMER TRAVEL STATS SHOW AN INDUSTRY IN RECOVERY.

One of the most anticipated comebacks of 2021 isn't an athlete, rock star, or movie franchise. It's summer travel, and it appears to be back with a vengeance.

Travel agents are working 14-hour days to meet the needs of eager travelers. People aren't just taking road trips, either; airports are reporting being at 80% of pre-COVID capacity, while the TSA screenings reached two million for the first time since the pandemic.

While these reports may be slightly less than pre-COVID, they also reflect an industry working to meet demand in the midst of new safety requirements, many of which place limits on the number of passengers and indoor occupancy at airport gates.^{1,2}

If you are planning to take a trip this summer, bear in mind that prices for gas and tickets don't merely reflect recent inflation, but an increased demand. AAA reports that hotel bookings in Las Vegas, Anaheim, and San Diego are seeing a pronounced uptick. Bear that in mind if you are not necessarily looking for population density this year.³

These summer travel stats show an industry in recovery and a nation eager to get out of the house. Whatever your plans might be, we hope you enjoy the season and look forward to touching base with you and hearing all about your travels.
